HERITAGE-STYLE BIRDING TOURS - Legacy offers this style of tour in only a few select countries. Our criteria for picking destinations is based on several necessary elements: (1) an interesting selection of birds, but not so many species that the Heritage-Style becomes 'swamped' by a sense of duty toward finding all of the new ones; (2) though birding remains the central focus of a Heritage-Style tour, the daily program will incorporate a variety of appealing activities such as historical and cultural interactions; (3) there are always fewer 'moves' from one location to another, with more interesting lodging along the way, as the pace of the tour is an important element of a successful Heritage-Style Tour; and (4) most meals are enjoyed while sitting down at a table, with very few picnic lunches or cold breakfasts. As result of our adherence to these four elements we find that the less interested friend, partner, or spouse identifies this style of 'birding trip' as an absolute delight! We look for countries that have a story to tell the visitor and the infrastructure to welcome westerners easily. Within Mexico only the 'Yucatan Tour' affords the infrastructure and cultural elements that allow for the successful combination of searching for endemic birds and relaxing in the Heritage-Style.
